SHOOTING SCRAPE IN CALDWELL CO.

Robert Lisarby Shot and Killed By Allen Sigler Near Walnut
Hill Last Sat. Night

A shooting scrape in which Bob Lisarby was shot and mortally wounded and Ross Lisarby, a brother, was shot and seriously wounded by Allen Sigler, took place near the Walnut Hill School house in the Shade Grove section of this county, last Saturday night.

Bob Lisarby, who was shot in the left eye, lived until 7:30 Sunday morning, and an inquest was held Sunday night by Esquire Hoy Blackburn, in whose district the shooting occurred. G. S. Powers, S. W. Tokery, R. G. Dorris, A. C. Dorris, W. E. Howton and L. O. Perkins composed the jury and the following is the verdict: "We the coroner's jury agree that the deceased, Bob Lisarby, came to his death by a pistol shot fired by Allen Sigler on Feb. 10, 1917, in Caldwell County, Ky., near Walnut Hill School house. This, Feb. 11, 1917.

From the evidence given by several parties, who witnessed the shooting, the participants were enrolled from an entertainment given at the home of Spurlin Chambers, and it seemed that the Lisarby boys, Sigler and others in the crowd, were under the influence of strong drink and a free for all scuffle resulted in a slanging out, in which Ross Lisarby and Allen Sigler had a fight. Lisarby hitting Sigler in the face with his fist knocking him down, and Sigler in turn shot Lisarby in the arm.

Immediately following the shooting of Ross Lisarby his brother, Bob, came back to the crowd and started toward Sigler, who ordered him to stop two or three times and then fired upon him, the bullet taking effect in the left eye, and he fell to the ground mortally wounded, but lingered until 7:30 Sunday morning.

Sigler left for parts unknown and has not been apprehended. A warrant was issued by Co. Judge M. P. Smith for the arrest of Sigler on the charge of murder—Prisoner on Leader.

Kentucky Mountains to Be Stocked With Wild Deer.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 13.—Wild deer will run free in Kentucky mountains this year for the first time within the memory of most of the present generation. The State Game and Fish Commission has decided to set free in that vicinity some of the deer now confined on the Pine Mountain reservation, and send some of those from the pens at Louisville to the wooded country between the Tennessee and Cumberland rivers in Western Kentucky.

A St. Louis firm owns 50,000 acres of timber land and has offered its use for a reservation. The Commission will continue the policy of buying a few deer each year and keeping the nucleus of the herd on the reservation to breed and accustom the newcomers to the mountain environments.

Chairman Joseph G. Sachs, Jr., said that great results have been realized from educational work in awakening the general public to the necessity for fish and game conservation. He spoke of the general co-operation in the feeding of game birds during this winter's snows. A more systematic and far-reaching campaign is to be instituted to enlist Boy Scouts and school children and train the generation, while young, in game protection.

State Superintendent V. O. Gilbert and J. Q. Ward, executive agent of the Commission, will adopt a plan for the schools, comprehending instruction in the value of all kinds of bird, fish and game, and they will propose to the General Assembly the designation of "Birds Day" as a legal holiday for the schools. County prizes for the best composition on birds and game will be offered the school children and the best among the county prize winners will be awarded a State prize.

The Pennsylvania plan of training Boy Scouts will be adopted. This will be taken up with the Scout Masters. Instructions in regard to birds and wild game will be given and the boys will be asked to assist in the detection of game law violations, fees for such services to go to the Scout Troop.

PERSONAL

To the dear splendid friends who have caused the first twelve months of my shut-in to be in so many ways delightful.

I am too supremely grateful to even attempt finding in the English language words to express my gratitude. It isn't in the dictionary, so what's the use.

On Thursday I am to go to the hospital at my own request. Several weeks and as it may be to enter a hospital as sometimes one fails to return in the same brilliant shape he departed. I want to voice my thanks now, rather than through a post mortem after a while.

STANLEY CALLS SPECIAL SESSION

Kentucky Legislature to Meet Feb. 14 and Limited to Revenue and Taxation Bills.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 13.—(Special).—Responding to a demand for tax reform that already has resulted in a constitutional amendment for the classification of property in Kentucky, Governor A. O. Stanley tonight issued a call for a special session of the Kentucky general assembly, to convene Wednesday, Feb. 14. The governor stipulates that the session is to be for the "sole purpose of considering the subject of revenue and taxation."

The coming session will be the first special assembly in twelve years.

Gov. W. O. Bradley called one to elect a United States senator and Gov. J. C. W. Beckham called sessions twice, in 1909 to pass an election law and in 1905 to locate the new capitol. Neither Gov. A. E. Wilson nor Gov. J. B. McCreary, whose terms intervened, called a special session. The session automatically is limited to six legislative days, which includes Sundays and legal holidays.

The senate and house employees, clerks, sergeant-at-arms, doorkeepers, pages, and janitors elected at the 1916 session will hold their places through the special session.

With only the question before them of revenue and taxation measures, which must originate in the house and pass that branch first, the senators will have ample time to acquaint themselves with all the details to proposed legislation by listening to the debates in the house and the employees will enjoy a session of comparative ease until the house begins sending bills to the other end of the capitol.

THINKS FOE HAS GIVEN UP HOPE FOR FIELD VICTORY

British People Less Worried Than Those of Neutral Nations.

London, Feb. 12.—Twenty-four hours reflection over Germany's latest threat appears to have left the British public less worried than appears to be the state of public mind in most neutral countries. Two points of the issue stand out strongly in all public criticism. First, that the German decision is the counsel of desperation and a virtual confession that she has abandoned hope for military victory in the field, and second, that having shown no restraint in recent months in her submarine warfare on shipping bound to opposing belligerent countries, it is needless to feel dismayed at what she is likely to do in the future since probably all available submarines have been in full employment, and it is unlikely that in the near future Germany can have a much greater number of underwater boats at her command.

Whole World Now In Debt To U. S., Comptroller Shows.

Washington, Feb. 13.—"The United States now seems to be entrenched financially almost as firmly as it is possible for any nation to be," states the Comptroller of the Currency in his report submitted to Congress to day. The report adds:

"Practically the whole world is in debt to us and is steadily increasing its obligations. As the figures show so conclusively, our wealth is piling up with wonderful rapidity; but to do our proper work in the world and to protect and enlarge our own interests we may before long need every dollar of these resources, gigantic and inexhaustible as they now seem to be."

In the past fiscal year deposits of the national banks increased $1,126,000,000, while in the two years from Oct. 1, 1914, to Nov. 17, 1916, resources of all the national banks increased $4,028,000,000, or more than 35 per cent.

"It is also worthy of note," the Comptroller says, "that the aggregate resources of the national banks of the United States at this time exceed by about $1,000,000,000 the combined resources of all the great banks of issue of all the principal countries of the world."

At the outbreak of the European war this country owed Europe about $450,000,000. Before twelve months she had paid this debt and between Aug. 1, 1914, and Nov. 1, 1916, loaned European nations about $2,000,000,000. Gross earnings of national banks in the past fiscal year were $590,643,951, net earnings $157,643,647, the latter an increase of $30,500,000 during the year. Dividends $114,724,495 was paid, an increase of about $1,000,000.

The popular belief that the United States is the richest country in the world, measured by the per capita money in bank, is dispelled. The per capita deposits in the United States was $50.00; in New Zealand it was $91.41; in Australia it reached $106.97.

Mr. S. M. Jenkins,
Marion, Ky.

Dear Sir:—
Find enclosed $1.00 for which send me the dear old Record-Press another year for 1917, for I can't do without that dear old paper. It is such a pleasure to me to read the home news, but yet sad to read of so many deaths as was in the paper this week, but oh! Such is life, we'll all have those things to bear, it is right or it would not be so.

Wishing you and all the readers of the dear old Press a prosperous year, I remain as ever,
Yours Respectfully,
Sallie Allen.

INTERESTING DAY AT SISCO'S CHAPEL

School Closed February 9, and A Good Program Was Given
Those Present

A large crowd assembled at Sisco's Chapel, it being the close of school, M. C. Smart, teacher, had a very interesting program arranged for the occasion. About 10 o'clock the congregation was called to order and the exercises began, preceding the music which was furnished by the following: Joe Rushing, violin, Joanne Jennings, guitar, George Patmore and Miss Glenna Sisco, organists. Music, recitations and dialogues entertained the crowd until noon, when dinner was spread which had been prepared by the good people of Sisco's chapel. Everybody was invited around to dinner which was by all means plentiful.

Afternoon program consisted of a play of twenty characters, entitled, "The Last Half Day in the District School." After this talks were given by the patrons and trustees, boasting of their good school and teacher. Three of Mr. Smart's pupils took the examination for County promotion certificates. All three passed, being Miss Glenna Sisco, Messrs. Wallace Mayes and Grady Sisco. These pupils deserve credit for the good work they have done during the year.

We therefore wish to say that Mr. Smart has taught us an excellent school and we wish him and his good wife much success wherever they may go, and we can say for Sisco's Chapel that she is coming to the front by the work of the teachers and intelligent working pupils.

This was a day which will long be remembered by all present.

DEATHS

Mrs. Leander White died Monday at her home on Claylick creek near Emmaus. She had been ill for some time. She was a Miss Hardigan, and the wife of one of the wealthiest men in that section. She was buried at Union.

Mrs. Eliza Floyd, an aged citizen, mother of John Floyd, died Sunday night in the Sisco's Chapel section. She was born 1824, Oct. 19th, in DeKalb Co., Tennessee, and moved here in 1873. Five children survive: James T. Floyd, of Arkansas; John H. Floyd, B. M. Floyd, Katie Wright and Sarah Sullivan, of this county. She was buried at Sisco's Chapel Tuesday, Rev. C. R. Kinnon officiating.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew R. Deboe, Crayne section, sympathize with them in the loss of their first born, a son, A. M. n. aged twenty years, who died of la grippe and other complications superinduced by a severe cold which he contracted Christmas week.

He was ill for just a month, passing peacefully away Tuesday, Jan. 30th. The burial took place at Fredonia Wednesday, Jan. 31st, 1917, in the presence of a large gathering of friends and relatives.

He is survived by his parents, two sisters and five brothers.

He had been a christian for many years and lived a constant life, and was a fine young man just grown to a promising manhood.

Phillip Howard Deboe, an aged and respected citizen, died at his home in this city Tuesday evening Feb. 13th, at 7:30 o'clock after an illness of two weeks, of asthma and la grippe followed by pneumonia. He had been ill two weeks, and for several days no hope was entertained for his recovery.

The deceased was born near Crayne, May 10th, 1844, and was therefore approaching his 73rd birthday. His wife died in August, 1915, just a year and a half ago. Nine children survive, seven daughters being Cora, wife of George H. Thomas, of Providence, Ky.; Julia, wife of Rev. E. H. Sneeks, of Pennsylvania; Doxie, wife of James A. Pickers, of Tribune; Nannie, wife of James B. Allen, of Cave Spring; Mary, wife of Ed Perry, of Repton; Mendozen, wife of J. W. Huffman, of this city, and Miss Effie, who kept house for her father and was his mainstay and comfort in his old age. Two sons being Wm. A., of Blackford, and Hugh, of Cotton Plant, Arkansas.

He was a Cumberland Presbyterian first holding his membership at Piney Fork, afterward at Sugar Grove but for several years at the Marion church of which he was one of the pillars. The body will be taken from home to his church at 10 o'clock today, when the funeral will be preached by the pastor, Rev. C. Newman, after which the remains will be turned over to the Masons of which Order he had long been a member. The interment will be in the New Cemetery beside the grave of his wife.

Daughter of President Wilson son to be in Paducah, Ky.

Miss Margaret Woodrow Wilson daughter of President Wilson will give a song recital in Paducah on Feb. 27 and it promises to be the musical event of the year for Western Kentucky.

Miss Wilson has won the admiration of the people through her efforts to make a career for herself rather than to lead the brilliant social life of the White House in Washington.

Her naturally pleasing soprano voice has been carefully trained and those who might go simply to see the President's daughter will be amply rewarded from an artistic standpoint.

great pleasure in announcing to the public the great benefit derived from the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I had that dreadful disease, a woman's trouble, which caused such bearing-down pains, burning sensation, and dull feeling in my head that I became a nervous wreck. I had five doctors to treat me, all to no avail. I had given up to die and to leave my dear husband and five little girls to the mercy of this world, when at last my husband begged me to try Dr. Pierce's medicines. I weighed 118 pounds when I began their use. I used 18 bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' and four or five boxes of 'Lotion Tablets.' At the end of the treatment I was well and weighed 163 pounds."—Mrs. Rachel Tackitt.

When a girl becomes a woman, when a woman becomes a mother, when a woman passes through the changes of middle life, are the three periods of life when health and strength are most needed to withstand the pain and distress often caused by severe organic disturbances.

At these critical times women are best fortified by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, an old remedy of proved worth that keeps the female system regulated and in condition.

Mothers, if your daughters are weak, lack ambition, are troubled with headaches, lassitude and are pale and sickly, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is just what they need to surely bring the bloom of health to their cheeks and make them strong and healthy.

Germans Hope to Increase Ships Sunk to 1,000,000 Tons Monthly.

Berlin, Feb. 13 (via London Feb. 14).—Expectations expressed in unofficial circles here that as a result of the unrestricted submarine campaign, the amount of tonnage sunk each month can be increased to 1,000,000 tons, are passed upon available amount figures showing the total amount of British tonnage, which is estimated at 11,000,000 to 12,000,000 of tons. This is believed here to be the gross registered tonnage upon which England can count for the import of necessary supplies, wheat, ores, munitions, etc., and for the export of coal to her allies.

Statistics are cited showing the actual, not theoretical, traffic in British ports from July to September amounted to 6,750,000 tons, carried in British vessels. In addition, it is reported that the neutral and Entente vessels, other than British ports during that period brought the total tonnage up to approximately 10,750,000 tons.

It is asserted that grain shipments from Australia to England are making steadily increased demands upon this tonnage which must be transported from Denmark 60 per cent of England's butter supply and from Holland, virtually all of her margarine supply. Any considerable reduction of this tonnage, it is claimed would limit England's supply of breadstuffs so critically as to force peace within a few months.

On the other hand, if the United States should be drawn into the war, these unofficial critics foresee a prolongation of the war and, as a conclusion, Europe completely exhausted and America weakened, while Japan's military strength, they assert, virtually would be unimpaired and her financial resources vastly increased.

Capt. Persius, writing in the Tagesblatt, throws a dash of cold water upon such reasoners, which include some of his colleagues among the naval writers, by declaring that British tonnage undoubtedly will be greatly increased during the war by the building of new bottoms. He also warns them against making too optimistic estimates of German submarines and against regarding too lightly the probable counter measures upon which, he asserts the British Admiralty undoubtedly is zealously working.

POULTRY

WHITE DIARRHEA IN CHICKS

Trouble Is Caused by Bacteria—Sour Milk Has Discouraging Effect on Disease.

It has been determined that the white diarrhea in chicks is caused by bacteria, and, if thoroughly done, disinfecting is a preventive—with one exception: Investigations by authoritative sources have developed the fact that bacteria has been found in the ovaries of hens and in the yolks of the eggs. In this event there is no help so long as the same stock is kept.

There is no positively known cure. Sour milk has been found to have a discouraging effect on the disease, if given to the chick from the first. Burning litter, spraying the poultry surroundings with a strong disinfectant and waging war generally, just as you would if it were some parasite that you could see, is about all that can be done.

The disease is the worst where chickens are raised in large numbers.

GEESSE ARE GREAT FORAGERS

Improved Breeds Are Not Much Disposed to Wander and Therefore Are Easily Cared For.

Geese are great foragers and will wander for miles in search of food. This is particularly true of the common kind, but the improved breeds are not as much disposed to wander and for that reason are more easily cared for.

The three principal breeds of geese are the Toulouse, China and Embden. The Toulouse is a very large, gray goose, and reaches maturity when about two and a half years old. When fat they weigh about 25 pounds and sometimes an old bird will reach 32 pounds.

Toulouse geese seldom rise from the ground, and are, therefore, easily kept within bounds. A fence that will turn cattle or sheep will confine them and they are at home wherever there is plenty of pasture and good water to drink. They do not require water to swim in. The pasture need not be first-class, as they will eat with apparent relish a coarse grass and weeds that cattle will not touch.

POPULAR FOWLS FOR EATING

Taste of Nice, Juicy Piece of Capon Will Induce Farmer to Caponize Most of Cockerels.

Cockerels are good and dandy eating; but did you ever put your teeth into a nice, juicy piece of capon? If you haven't, you've something to live for. And when you've once tasted capon, you'll be mighty apt to caponize most of your cockerels. When this is done, then we'll have less infertile eggs.

TREATMENT FOR SCALY LEGS

Disease Is Caused by Presence of a Mite Not Distinguishable by the Naked Eye.

Scaly legs, a disease which is caused by the presence of a mite that is not distinguishable by the naked eye, may be cured by first washing the legs of the birds affected with soap and warm water and after they are dry applying kerosene. A couple of days later cottonseed oil or vaseline should be applied.

INFERTILE EGGS KEEP LONG

Males in Chicken Flock Are Useful Only During the Breeding Season—Fertile Egg Soon Spoils.

Males in the flock are useful only to fertilize eggs and the only fertile eggs required are those used for hatching purposes.

An infertile egg will keep for weeks and months under conditions that would spoil a fertile egg in a very few hours.

IT MUST BE TRUE

Marion Readers Come to That Conclusion.

It is not the telling of a single case in Marion, but a number of citizens testify. Endorsement by people you know bears the stamp of truth. The following is one of the public statements made in this locality about Doan's Kidney Pills:

G. B. Johnson, 502 E. Depot street Marion, says: "I suffered for fully five years with kidney trouble that was sapping my very strength away. My back ached and pained constantly and I was lame, especially mornings. The least exertion tired me and if I overdid it, it resulted in headaches and dizzy spells. I was also very nervous. The kidney secretions passed too frequently, causing me to get up at night. I got a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at Haynes & Taylor's drug store. They helped me from the first and I continued their use until entirely cured." Price 50 cents at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that cured Mr. Johnson.—Foster-Milburn, Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

Washington. — Japan's representations to the United States against anti-alien land bills now pending in the Idaho and Oregon legislatures is considered no less serious, at this critical juncture of international affairs, than her protests against the California laws four years ago. 18,000,000 Men Available

For Army Service in U. S.

New York, Feb. 12. — An army of nearly 18,000,000 men could be called to the colors of the United States, if necessary, according to a carefully prepared estimate made public to-night by the Executive Committee on National Defense. Of this number 10,535,940 are between the ages of 18 and 45 years and now are physically fit for service in the field, it was said.

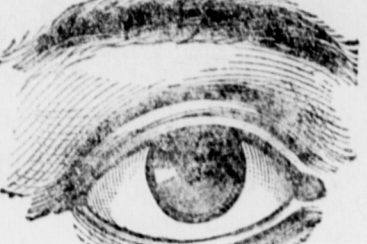

In addition to this vast mobile force, the committee declared that if the French standard of 1910 should be applied, 600,000 of the 900,000 men who annually reach military age in the United States would be fit for service.

By the German standard, as applied in 1910 the United States would have 459,000 physically fit young men reaching military age annually.

MANY FOOLED BY MONEY HE "MADE"

Expert Cashiers Deceived by Counterfeits Produced by H. R. Wilken.

AT LAST RUN DOWN

At Age of Twenty-Nine Man Who Gave Secret Service Many Years of Worry Now Faces Penitentiary Sentence.

Washington.—His career ended at twenty-nine, H. R. Wilken faces a penitentiary sentence of anywhere up to fifteen years when he is tried at San Francisco for counterfeiting. But, while he may drop out for a time, he will have left behind him a lot of visiting cards—in the form of the most nearly perfect counterfeit $1, $5 and $10 bills ever shoved across a counter in payment for a small purchase, according to the secret service.

Wilken was arrested at Santa Cruz, Cal., by secret service men, who claim to have obtained a confession during a subsequent trip to San Francisco, where he is held for trial. When he landed in jail secret service men, from Chief Flynn down to the newest operative, heaved a long, deep sigh of relief.

Wilken is a young man. Where he started the police do not know. The first time the secret service ever heard of him was when particularly excellent counterfeit bills began coming to the treasury from banks all over the country, which had accepted them as genuine. The chase for their manufacturer started. It led the secret service throughout the country several times and ended in Santa Cruz.

Trail of Counterfeits.

For some years Wilken flitted gaily about from town to town, the service says, leaving in his trail all sorts of counterfeit bills. The first charged to him were $1 bills, made of two sheets of paper pasted together, with the familiar strands of silk in between. Lots of the bills were found, and many worthy citizens who tried to use them found their way into police stations to undergo questioning. But there never was a trace of the owner.

While Wilken's masterpiece—alleged—was a $10 federal reserve note, warnings regarding which were distributed by the secret service a few weeks before his arrest, there were a lot more bills attributed to him which are preserved by the secret service as works of art.

After a Long Chase.

Wilken was caught after years of search, during which it is declared he circulated counterfeit bills of the face value of over $100,000. And if he hadn't stayed at the little town of Santa Cruz, where persons who spend one type of bill are easily found, he might not have been arrested. In larger cities the bills always had been discovered days or weeks after they had been dumped on the town.

It is believed by many that Wilken has the secret of making the "distinctive" paper used by the government for its notes. Some of his bills are believed to have been raised from smaller ones, but many of them, almost impossible to detect, bear the appearance of having been made from "distinctive" paper of unauthorized manufacture. Such bills are expensive to make; but, as in the case of many counterfeit gold coins, sometimes worth $3.50 where $5 is the represented value, there is a margin of "profit."

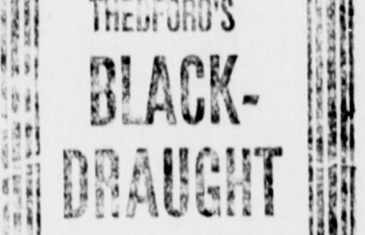

Wilken himself, from his photographs, is highly artistic. He looks like an Italian, with big dark eyes, an exceptionally high and broad forehead, a small black mustache over a small mouth, and dark features. Altogether he bears a really good resemblance to portraits of Poe. If the secret service stories are accurate, he drove, after his own fashion, almost as good a pen.

Weds Childhood Sweetheart.

Colds

should be "tapped in the bud", for if allowed to run unchecked, serious results may follow. Numerous cases of consumption, pneumonia, and other fatal diseases, can be traced back to a cold. At the first sign of a cold, protect yourself by thoroughly cleansing your system with a few doses of the old reliable, vegetable liver powder. Mr. Chas. A. Ragland, of Madison Heights, Va., says: "I have been using Theodor's Black-Draught for stomach troubles, indigestion and colds, and find it to be the very best medicine I ever used. It makes an old man feel like a young one." Insist on Theodor's, the original and genuine. B-67

U. S. Embassy at London Gives Up Teuton Work

London, Feb. 13.—The American Embassy this morning received formal notification from Washington to discontinue representing German interests in Great Britain. The British Government was advised at the time that owing to the severance of diplomatic relations the United States has ceased to represent British interests in Germany.

The State Department advised the embassy that it had not yet been decided what neutral would be entrusted with German interests in England, but that the embassy would be notified later.

Novel Water Heater.

One of the numerous new electric heaters has the form of a nickel tube seven inches long, with the usual cord and plug connecting to a lamp socket. The resistance coil in the tube becomes intensely hot very quickly, and it is claimed that shaving water in which the tube is immersed will be heated in less than a minute. In a little longer time small quantities of water or other liquids can be raised to boiling.

Wilson Invites Other Neutrals To Join in Diplomatic Severance.

Washington, Feb. 14.—President Wilson's instructions to American diplomats to invite the other neutral nations to join with the United States in the severance of diplomatic relations with Germany follows:

"You will immediately notify the Government to which you are accredited that the United States, because of the German Government's recent announcement of its intention to renew unrestricted submarine warfare, has no choice but to follow the course laid down in its note of April 18, 1916 (the Sussex note).

"It has, therefore, recalled the American Ambassador from Berlin and has delivered his passports to the German Ambassador to the United States.

"Sav also that the President is reluctant to believe Germany actually will carry out her threat against neutral commerce, but if it be done the President will ask Congress to authorize use of the national power to protect American citizens engaged in their peaceful and lawful errands on the seas.

"The course taken is, in the President's view, entirely in conformity with the principles he enunciated in his address to the Senate January 12, 1917 (The address proposing a world league for peace.)

"He believes it will make for the peace of the world if other neutral Powers can find it possible to take similar action.

"Report fully and immediately on the reception of this announcement and upon the suggestion as to similar action."

Sloan's Liniment Eases Pain

Sloan's Liniment is first thought of when there are bumps, bruises and sprains that are continually happening to children. It quickly penetrates and soothes without rubbing. Cleaner and more effective than musky plasters or ointments. For rheumatic aches, neuralgia pain and that grippy soreness after colds, Sloan's Liniment gives prompt relief. Have a bottle handy for bruises, strains, sprains and all external pain. For the thousands whose work calls them outdoors, the pains and aches following exposure are relieved by Sloan's Liniment. At all druggists 25 cents.

POULTRY

LISTEN FOR CACKLE OF HEN
Feed Fowls in Accordance With Demands of Nature as Propounded by Poultry Experts.

Listen for the cackle of your hen. It has a money value to you.

The winter season is approaching, when the price of eggs will advance and the cackle will become of even greater significance to you.

Plan for the cackle, feed the hens in accordance with the demands of nature as propounded by the experts who have spent their lives in the work.

If the cackle is not heard with sufficient frequency ask yourself why. Dig down and study the subject for the more you study the oftener the hen will cackle, and cackling means more eggs and a bigger bank account.

It is the law of nature that a hen should lay, and cackle. She should lay often and do much cackling, for that, too, is nature's law.

But she will not lay unless she receives proper food and care, and therein lies the wisdom of the man who thinks before he acts.

Get hold of some good literature, read up on the subject of egg production, apply the knowledge you thus obtain, and in the end you will learn to experience a keen delight in every cackle of your hens.

Your hen wants to cackle—she will cackle if you give her a chance. And there's money in the cackle of a hen.

BEST TURKEYS FOR BREEDING

Error for Farmer to Feed Stock Fowls With Those Intended for the Holiday Market.

It is a great mistake for the farmer to feed his stock turkeys with those intended for the holiday markets, yet so many of them do. It is the worst thing in the world to do. Before the turkeys are made ready for market make choice of the turkeys you expect to keep over for breeding purposes and choose your very best. Place these somewhere away from the rest, and while you keep them in fine condition by feeding corn, wheat and oats, the latter, if boiled, forming a healthy ration for turkeys, do not seek to lay on the fat you want on the market turkeys. This is why stock turkeys often die in the winter, simply because they were fattened until the liver broke down and became diseased because of its own fat.

BEST CHICKENS FOR CAPONS

Fowls Hatched in May and June Are Favored—Cockerels Are Valuable as Broilers.

Chickens hatched in May and June are better for capons, as the earlier cockerels are worth too much as broilers from two to four pounds to caponize and hold over until the capon market opens up, which is from about the middle of January until about the middle of March. At the age of eight or nine months a capon from larger varieties of chickens will weigh from seven to twelve pounds. For the last few years live capons have sold from 18 to 25 cents per pound and the rooster from 6 to 9 cents per pound.

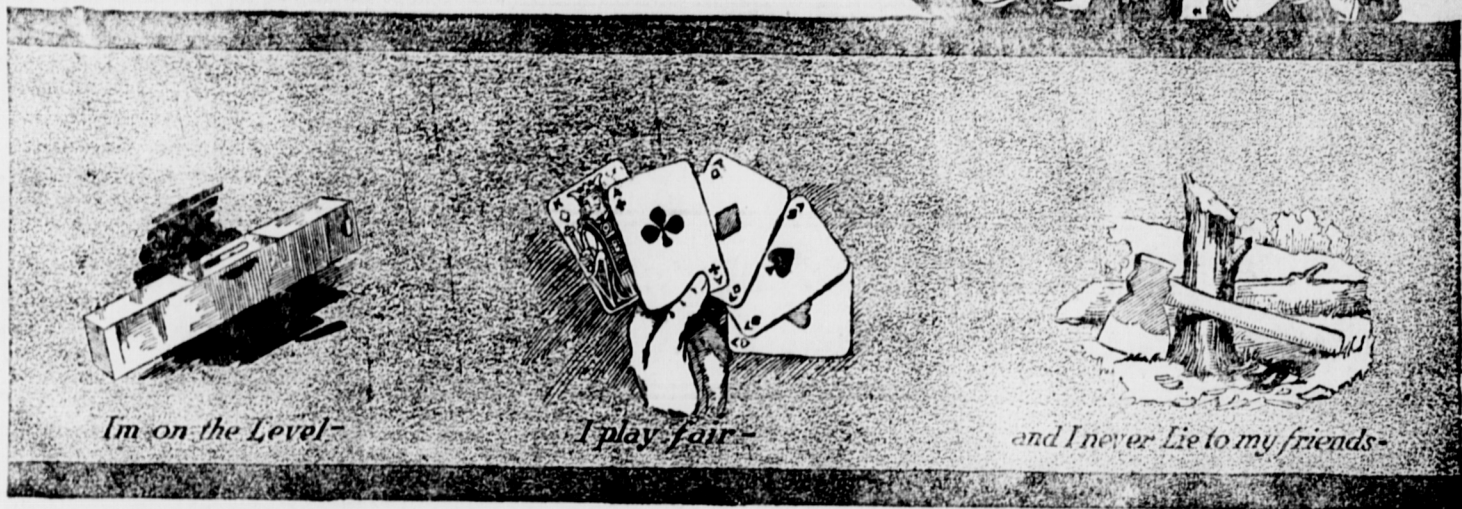

Other uses may be made of the capon, for, with a little encouragement, he will mother a brood of little chicks, cluck and scratch for them as their real mother would. A rather queer sight to see. He has also been made to sit with good results by some poultrymen.

CREATION OF FERTILE EGGS

One Male to Ten or Fifteen Hens Is Average Ratio With Small Breeds, Such as Leghorns.

The following ratio of male to females may be expected to produce fertile eggs under average conditions: Small breeds, such as Leghorn, one male to 10 or 15 females; medium-size breed, such as Plymouth Rock and Rhode Island Red, one male to 8 or 10 females; and heavy breeds, like Brahmas, one male to six or eight females. The activity of the individual male is, of course, a governing factor.

A Southern Gentleman Is Popular Everywhere

Im on the Level

I play fair

and I never lie to my friends

Just think this over a minute.—How many friends have you? Not the fellows who borrow from you—I mean the chaps who will fight for you! Fellows who believe in you—who stick by you through thick and thin. You can count them on one hand, can't you? But listen to this.—I have several million down South here.

And why? Because I've been on the level.

You Folks of the South KNOW Good blood!
You Folks of the South KNOW Good tobacco!

I have friends down South, and I keep them—because quality does tell. And it means a whole lot when I say:

I am guaranteed by The American Tobacco Co. —Buy me. If you don't like me return me to your dealer and get your money back. I have said it. A Southern gentleman is known the world over for keeping his word, and I have given you mine.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury

Mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and made at Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

COUNTY COURT CLERK
will greatly appreciate your vote and influence Republican primary Aug. 4th, 1917.

Dr. J. D. Threlkeld who is visiting his sons this winter was here Monday and placed his announcement in our columns for Representative from the counties of Crittenden and Livingston. Dr. Threlkeld is at present with his son, Roy, at Dawson, but will leave there in a few days to visit his son, Lal, and family, in Oklahoma City after which he will return home and make a canvass of the two counties to meet all of his old friends in person. Few men are as well known in the two counties as is Dr. Threlkeld. He was a practitioner at Salem for a quarter of a century or more and has lived in this county at Tolu and Marion probably as long a time and has always taken the lead in all matters of public interest.

The Livingston Enterprise has this to say of our old friend James Cox, a former Salem boy.

"J. F. Cox, of Carrsville, advanced his subscription two years by sending his check this week. In his letter accompanying the renewal, Mr. Cox says: 'I have shipped several cars of Sugar and have a lot of lead for shipment since I saw the Editor, C. M. Miller, of Pittsburg, Pa. and C. P. Keessling of New York, capitalists are interested with Mr. Cox. It is the time for the people of Livingston and Crittenden counties to encourage capital and seeking investments here for our mines are richest in the world.'"

We noticed the Blackford items last week where the correspondent spoke of the decline in attendance at our public schools. We wish to say that it is the case in the Boaz district, but few are attending and we are at a loss to know the reason. Sometimes we think the patrons are at fault, that perhaps, they don't realize the importance of keeping their children regular at school as they should do for without the co-operation of the patrons and pupils we believe the teachers' efforts will prove a failure. But perhaps our teachers are not as much interested as they ought to be in instructing and training the children, and that many times causes parents to get careless and indifferent toward the grave in regard to school work and to say they become discouraged and therefore discourage their children, and we think we as parents, teachers and superintendents, should give more thought and study to this question and find out the reason of this lack of attendance, and try to amend it. Much money is paid out for the benefit of our schools and why not be benefited.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

Whereas, God in His infinite wisdom has seen fit to call our true friend and business associate Wm. Barnett to his reward, with bowed heads and heavy hearts, we must humbly submit to His will. As we loved him in life, so we honor him in death. With his virtues engraved on our memories, we lingeringly dwell upon his pleasant fellowship, his loyal support and his devotion to our Institution. Therefore be it Resolved, in the death of our dear friend and business associate, Wm. Barnett, this Institution has lost a faithful officer, his family a kind and loving husband and father and the community a true and upright citizen.

Resolved, that the officers of this institution extend to the bereaved family heartfelt sympathy and commend them to him who alone can heal the wounds and bind the broken hearts.

Be it further
Resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be placed upon the minutes, and a copy sent to the family and a copy sent to the Crittenden Record-Press for publication.

Stanley At Murray.

Down yonder in Kentucky, where the Bourbon blossoms blow, where the horses are the finest and the prettiest women grow; where the bluegrass is a wonder and they eat tobacco raw; where they still believe that lynchings is the highest moral law, there's governor named Stanley, whose steps incline to stray from the well worn paths of justice in the old Kentucky way. It seems that certain lynchings, who were held up in their sport, announced their firm intention to bag the whole dern county, and Stanley, when he learned it, instead of riding around and getting into a trap with a string of his own whoops, rushed to the scene of action alone to meet the mob, and he headed them a sample of the Right Man on the Job. Unarmed, he faced the lynchings, with neither fear nor doubt—he backed them down and out. He saved the situation, he kept Kentucky's name from further acquisition of dark and bloody fame, and set a brave example of high official nerve which others high in office might happily observe. Kentucky is not perfect and even Stanley's sand, can not produce perfection and warrant it to stand; but one good man like Stanley, in that and other states, would be of greater service than all long debates, and with such men of courage who do not talk but fight, the Lynching Party would disappear from sight.—W. J. Lampson in New York Herald.

HELPING OUT

By LOUISE OLIVER.

Alan Pierpont, bending over a bed of coriopsis, straightened at the sound of a voice.

"I came," it said, "to see if you would mind if I take Nancy for a ride." Gretchen Van Doon, light haired and blue-eyed as her Dutch name implied, smiled the inquiry.

"No, fairy godmother, I wouldn't. Moreover, I don't suppose it would do much good for me to object if you and Nancy have made up your minds to go. Eh, kiddie?" as a little girl of seven ran around the house from the street.

"But—since you call me 'fairy godmother'—I'll have to dress her. Her hair ribbons, for instance, won't do. You see, you put on one red one and one blue this morning, and I'd like to get the mate of either one."

Alan smoothed the hair over his temple as he did when perplexed. "Well, does it make any difference? Do they have to match? I was thinking when I put them on that they were like my bed of oriental poppies and blue larkspur."

A quick look of sympathy came over Gretchen's face. The artist and his little girl were at once the despair and amusement of Kenboro, for little Nancy came forth in some of the queerest rigging that ever adorned a child.

"Come on," purred Nancy, so the two disappeared into the house.

"I'd like to paint her among the poppies and larkspur," he thought.

There was a sound of a motor stopping at the front of the house and a man came around into the garden.

"Walter!" cried the man among the flowers.

"How do you do, Alan?" greeted the other cordially enough, coming up close behind holding out a hand.

"Yes, I do my own gardening," said Alan simply. "I'm glad to see you. Won't you come into the house?"

"It is pleasant out here. Can't we sit down on this bench under the tree?" asked the newcomer. "I can't stay long anyway and, needless to say, came on business."

"I suppose it's the same old story," said Alan wearily as they sat down.

"Pretty much, Alan—see here—you've been acting the tomfool long enough. The business has grown and father's getting old. There's too much for me to manage and the big profits are going to strangers. You can't make a decent living dabbling."

Alan did not answer.

"If you're thinking of the other," went on his brother, "that can be arranged. Of course you can't bring the girl you married with you, but there's money enough in the family to take care of that as long as there's a court in the land."

"Stop!" cried Alan. "I don't care to hear any more. I've been happy for years, and now you come to spoil it."

Gretchen and Nancy appeared just then at the back door.

"I think we have everything. Good-by," called Gretchen smilingly from the door.

"Will you come here a minute—dear?" asked Alan.

Gretchen obeyed, but she was puzzled. Had she heard right? Had he really called her "dear?"

"Walter, I want you to meet my wife. This is my brother, Walter Pierpont."

Gretchen held out her hand mechanically and managed to smile. She was so much puzzled to protest, besides, something tense and pleading in Alan's face helped her to play the part.

"I am very glad to meet you," she smiled. "We would like to have you stay but—" she turned to Alan rather helplessly—"we are going on a little trip today. Is that right?"

"Thank you. I didn't come to stay. I came on business purely and that seems to be concluded," said Walter as he took his leave.

The two stood in the garden until the sound of the car died away. Then Alan said: "Thank you, Miss Gretchen! I had to do it. He came to me with a dastardly proposition, not showing Nancy's mother was dead. If I had told they would never let me alone until I went back to a world I hate. Besides, they would take Nancy away from me. You don't mind, do you?"

"No, I don't mind," said Gretchen. "As nearly as I can make out that isn't very much different from matching up Nancy's hair ribbons. It all comes in the line of duty."

Later on, Alan painted Gretchen's picture among the flowers, and it sold for a top-notch price.

The letter with a check came one day when Alan had begun to despair.

Gretchen came into the garden. "I came to borrow Nancy," she said. "We're going for a ride."

"Two good news," he cried. "The picture sold for a thousand dollars! You are certainly my good fairy. But the name on the check is my father's! Walter will see the picture and say instantly, 'That is Alan's wife!'"

"It doesn't matter," said Gretchen flushing. "I don't care—if you don't!"

"But I do care! I want it to be really true, dear!"

"I sort of have the habit of doing whatever you ask," laughed Gretchen.

"If you really think you want me—I might—"

"You darling!" cried Alan, as he gathered her into his arms.

"A HALLOWEEN DREAM!"

By LOUISE OLIVER.

The club gave its annual Halloween party in the form of a black and white carnival. It was lucky for Jim Coolidge that this was so, for as it happened he was just in style.

Gladys Harkaway had a dreadful time making up her mind what to wear, changing from a Pierrette to a Columbine, to a witch, to a waiting maid, to a Tangiers dancer, to a to-boggan girl, and winding up by deciding on Night.

Nat Dilworth and Darwin Bent went as King Coal and King Cotton. Tom Morehead was the Black Hand, Emory Hughes was King Pluto, and Jim himself was in the broad black and white stripes of a convict.

Nobody knew it was Jim! But over across the river the guards were patrolling the banks, for Number 5911 had escaped and so far no trace of him had been found. When Jim had turned the boat drift and run under cover of the darkness into the bank and across the tracks into the open country, the unusual number of automobiles on the road attracted him. Then he remembered it was the night of the club party. Why not join the revelers? He was in costume and he could easily improvise a mask out of his handkerchief.

Things were ridiculously easy and he found himself in the center of the old crowd he had known so well in the past. Of course, he was not able to distinguish his old friends. Friends? How many had believed him when he had protested his innocence? Evidence was against him and Billings, the district attorney, had a way of making people believe black was white, but still he had grown up with them all, and he had rather expected sympathy.

Two ideas obsessed him; one was Gladys Harkaway, because he loved her, the other Emory Hughes, because on thinking things over, he decided that Hughes knew what had become of the missing securities and as Hughes, too, was in love with Gladys it had been an easy way to get him out of the way.

"I'd like to know what Gladys is wearing," he said to a saucy little black and white checkered girl in the middle of a waltz.

"Gladys! Gladys Harkaway!" she exclaimed. "Don't let on I told you, but there she is with the wand and star. She's Night!"

"Is Emory here, do you suppose?" he ventured further.

"Emory? Oh, you mean Mr. Hughes? Yes, he's dancing with Night. They say it's an awful case, but do you know I don't think she cares a snap for him. But since he's made so much money everybody says she's an awful fool to let him slip!"

It was nearly midnight and almost time for unmasking. Jim watched his chance to get away. Out on the terrace he looked around uneasily.

Two people passed him and a page opened the door of a cabriolet at the steps. Jim gasped as he saw Pluto land Night into the car. The door slammed and the starter purred. The car was sliding away into the shadows when Jim jumped and ran taking a short cut across the grass and hurling himself on the step as it passed.

Jim's hand was on the old pipe in his pocket. He whipped it out. In the darkness it answered for his purpose. "Drive the car where I tell you and keep your mouth shut," he commanded. "Take the river road and turn to the right of the forks."

Pluto swore, but did as he was told. Once down the beach-lined drive he swung into the river road.

"Now, Emory Hughes, get out and show Miss Harkaway where you put those securities. It's all as clear as day to me now; pretended you were studying geology, didn't you, and showed me specimens of rock when you thought I'd found you out. What a dunce I was until it was too late!"

"I want you too, Gladys. I'll need a witness. No one takes my word any more. I want you to see where this robber has hidden his loot."

"There's nothing there," protested the other man.

"How do you know?"

"Be—because I sold them."

The pipe that looked so much like a gun in the darkness had done its work well.

"Fine!" cried Jim. "The truth at last. Well just drive into town now and tell that to Billings. I'm tired of this uniform!"

Jim opened his eyes and sat up. The warm October afternoon was waning and a chill had come into the air. He shivered as he picked up the pipe that had gone out and fallen from the swing.

"Heavens dream! And yet I'm sorry it's not true in a way, with the mystery of the securities not cleared up yet and Gladys undecided whether she'll marry me."

The phone rang. It was Gladys. "Jim, what have you been doing this lovely Sunday afternoon. Why didn't you come over? Everybody's been here discussing the party and what we'll wear. Father just came in to tell us those securities have been found. I thought you'd be relieved. And Jim, won't you come tonight. I gave Emory Hughes his answer today and he's going away tomorrow, poor boy."

"It'll come if it's yes," he cried. "It is, Jim!"

FORD'S FERRY

Quite a number of people in this vicinity are manifesting considerable anxiety over the diplomatic break with Germany, but it is the humble opinion of your correspondent that the situation is not so grave and precarious as some people would lead us to believe.

Jack and Leamon Dempsey, of the Bell's Mines neighborhood, were in our midst Friday night.

Roy Brewer, of this place, recently went to Paducah to visit his brother, Nolan Brewer, who has recently been confined in the hospital as a result of some injuries he received not long ago.

Quite a number of young folks attended the dance Friday night, which was held in the vacant residence formerly occupied by Sherman Ford. Excellent music was furnished by the "Possum Ridge string band, and a real nice time was enjoyed by those who participated in the entertainment.

Joanna Rankin was in Ford's Ferry Thursday.

George Lutton and wife, who have been residing in this county for several months, will soon move back to Illinois where they formerly lived. George is planning to enter the poultry business on a large scale.

A large number of people attended the pound supper at the residence of T. N. Wofford Saturday night. In addition to the festivities, a number of entertaining games were played and a most enjoyable time was experienced by both young and old who were present.

"Possum Ridge school closed Friday and the day was celebrated in a most fitting manner by the teacher and her pupils. A large crowd gathered from all parts of the neighborhood and a real nice dinner was served to all who were present. A number of interesting dialogues and recitations were rendered by the pupils and other young people of the vicinity, who mutually cooperated with each other in order to make the occasion a grand success. In speaking of the day, it would not be amiss to add a few words of praise to the teacher, Miss Grace Condit. She has taught the recent term in a most creditable manner, and has maintained discipline by a method which was both firm and kind. She has also set before pupils a most worthy example of good behavior and general conduct, which they would do well to imitate.

MILLINERY MODES LESS FANTASTIC

Season's Styles Show Improvement Over Those of the Previous Years.

FELT LIKELY TO BE POPULAR

Indications That Velvet Has About Had Its Day of Popularity—Russian and Arabian Suggestions Mark Headgear—Bulion Ornamentation Leads.

New York.—At least, there is this to be said in regard to the fashionable pose: it is the simplest that the milliners have demanded in several seasons. That lavish tilt or the succession of them that have governed millinery during the last few years were difficult beyond measure to achieve.

We have gone backward farther than usual this season for an inspiration for new fashions, and the artistry and variety of the centuries that reached upward from the Norman conquest to the days of Catherine de Medici have been overhauled to make an American costume and to France, American dollars.

Turning to Felt Predicted. It is highly probable that we will wear more felt as the season advances than we thought was advisable at the beginning of the season. Of course, velvet stands as the first choice, but there are thousands who are weary already of this fabric which sweeps over the continent with the thickness and pertinacity of a plague of locusts as soon as August reaches its maximum heat. At any rate, these sweeping felt hats of the musketeers are a relief from the ordinary velvet hats.

This hat is quite exclusive. It is like a tilted saucer. The top surface is in one piece, rising a bit in the middle. The brim leaves the head entirely after it passes the crown. The color is peacock blue, the fabric is thick satin, the ornamentation consists of peacock eyes laid flat on the satin. But there is the really odd touch, very oriental: Beneath the upturned brim at the back there extends a piece of satin folded like a turban that reaches almost to the ears and disappears there. Holding it in place and reaching across the entire back of the head is a conspicuous barrette of white and ruby crystals. Here is the Persian touch, for true, and if it sounds garish to you, wait until you see it on the right woman. It makes another hat in the afternoon seem commonplace.

Hats on Eastern Lines. There are also high embroidered velvet and satin hats that have been copied from native Russian costume, also the Arabian suggestions made by Balist. These shapes rest squarely on the head, showing not a flicker of hair except over the ears and at the extreme back, and the brim reaches out and up, coming to four points well above the crown.

Hat of Velvet and Tulle—The Lower Part Is of Black Velvet Embroidered in Gold Threads—The Crown Is of Tulle, and There Is an Aigrette in Front.

crown. Its surface is lavishly covered with barbaric embroidery in brilliant threads.

These are adopted by smart women for luncheon hours at restaurants as well as at private houses with a strictly tailored suit of velours, but not of serge. This fabric is relegated to second place. House frocks of it made after the manner of a twelfth-century chemise with a loose cord or girde swung around the figure below the waist are good, but for suits or fanciful gowns that may serve in other people's houses, other fabrics take its place. Serlian caps, in brilliant Balkan colors, are taken up by women who are unafraid of wearing the strikingly unusual. These have a splendid tasseled hanging at the side. Young girls look better in these than middle-aged women. All these hats give the effect of breadth across the head. There is no sign of a fashion that makes the head look like a pin point. Even for motor-ing, women adopt the soft velvet hat that spreads out across the top and, in lieu of other ornamentation, there are rows of fancy stitchery done in tarnished silver threads.

Bulion Leads as Ornamentation. One never gets far away in costume this season from the use of bulion. If it does not cover the evening frock or plaster itself over the surface of a velvet afternoon gown, it dribbles along on a service hat or the top of a blouse or edges the hem of an organdie collar.

From Russia we took the idea of extending an enormous silver or gold embroidered ornament across the front of an upturned brim, even when the hat is a copy of the one in which David liked to paint Napoleon. Naturally there is a strong suggestion of the country and the man, but it is one that France did not care to reflect upon in the old days. That retreat from Moscow was not a bright page in French history.

But in fashion there are no enmities nor friendships, except at the moment, and the icon of Moscow placed on the campaign hat of Napoleon is a juxtaposition that affronts not even the oldest inhabitant of France. There are so few other ornaments used outside those of bulion that it is not easy to turn to something new and striking.

Large Hat With Bird of Paradise—The Hat Is of Brown Velvet With a Brilliant Bird of Paradise—The Collar Worn With It Is of Fresh-Colored Chiffon, Fastened at the Waist With Roses.

Shiraz feathers are used when the hat makes on a picturesque turn, but they have none of the old bravado. Their wings, otherwise their tendrils, are clipped.

Cockade No Longer Worn. The cockade that was the chief adornment last winter has disappeared. It was done to death and we needed something new. The wired bows that France liked in the summer have never appealed to the American taste, and for very good reason: the acknowledgment that none but the Parisienne knew how to carry off this seemingly simple treatment of a hat with skill. Nothing but a bow sounds so simple; whereas, the dictum should run, anything but a bow.

The newest idea of the milliners is bound to reap a goodly harvest. This is the assembling of a matched group of articles that beguile the extra dollars out of the pocket. A hat, for instance, then a shopping bag, a neck-piece and sometimes spats to carry the scheme from crown to heel.

Even when the collar does not match the hat in material, it is arranged to bring about complete harmony between the two, and the perceptible advantage is so apparent to a woman that she cannot refrain from accepting the milliner's suggestion.

BANDBOX MUST BE CORRECT

Old Idea That Anything Will Do as Holder for the Hat Does Not Hold Today.

Her accessories betray her a gentlewoman. And what, pray, is the newest in accessories? Why, the "different" sort of bandbox; one that is not only practical, but a "joy forever" as well. It is a confection in hand-painted satin. It is rich black with stiff "wooden" looking garden varieties daubed all over its shiny surface. It is lined with pale pink satin, and that is all.

If you would have another, lend it to the sports hat. Make it in rose handkerchief linen. Streak it in the center and along the edge of the lid in generous stitches of wood embroidery in old blue. Do not omit the handy strap across the top; make it of self-material, stitch it here and there with the wool, and you have another "joy." And now for your "best" hat.

Its box must be a veritable dream in ivory satin and silver cloth. On a background of satin arrange "cut-outs" of silver cloth in conventionalized designs of the lotus and the tulip. Outlined in black chenille, the effect is striking. Line it with the satin; stitch a tiny silk cord where the side and bottom join. It is too adorable to stick away in a dark closet. It is intended for a decorative accessory to a charming boudoir.

Seasonable Negligees. They are of soft French flannel. And they feel good these brisk autumn mornings. The flannel is warm, not too heavy, and comes in unusually pretty colorings.

The wrappers are simply made, some finished with scalloping, others with satin bands.

Deep violet, soft lavender, pinks and blues are the shades—a woman may take her choice.

Two New Blouses.

An exclusive French blouse just off the steamer has a top of white chiffon with a lower part and peplum of navy blue which will effectively hide the top of the skirt. This dark peplum is embroidered with golden dots.

Another French blouse is in deep red crepe de chine embroidered with colored yarn. A wide sash of black silk is worn with this blouse.

EASY FOR AMATEUR

MANY NOVELTIES THAT MAY BE MADE AT HOME.

Newest Bags, Though Seemingly of Intricate Design and Workmanship, Really Present Few Difficulties to the Clever Woman.

Shop windows and counters are veritable catch-pennies—or rather catch-dollars—these days, for the novelties they offer are truly fascinating to the woman who pretends at all to keep up with the styles. Bags and collars, shoes, stockings, umbrellas, fur hat and muff sets, handkerchiefs, gloves—all the hundred and one accessories which the well-dressed woman affects, have soared from the class of necessities into that of luxuries, and hence are impossibilities to the woman whose pocketbook is not plump.

Now, the clever woman need not worry if she has time at her disposal, for she may fashion many of the small novelties herself.

Take, for instance, the new bags. When leather bags were in vogue one simply had to buy them; but now the confections of silk and beads can be made by amateur fingers. In the group of bags sketched you have five varieties.

On the extreme right is a stole bag, head-embroidered. This may be made from a remnant of the frock or suit material and embroidered in many colored beads with metal threads.

The bag with the feather bottom comes in evening colors and is topped with soft satin. This bag is unique in that it can be used as a fan.

The striped bag may be crocheted from silk, either in colorings of the bright Roman stripes or in a combination of two colors, or black and white. It is finished with a silk tassel, and a ribbon run through the crocheted eyes at the top fastens on a ring of jade or jet or tortoise shell.

Checkings of solid beadwork mark the unusual little bag of black velvet.

This solid beadwork can be done first on a light canvas and sewn on the bag or done directly on the velvet. It takes time and is tedious, but is well worth the trial.

Petals of taffeta edged with tiny beads overlap to form a very handsome bag, which may be developed in light shades for evening use or in black or dark blue for daytime carrying.

A band of mole fur outlines two disks of suede embroidered with beads to form a sporranc-like bag for tailored use.

FLASHY LININGS FOR COATS

Designers Have Gone to the Extreme, Both in Color and Design, in Season's Modes.

One of the sensations of the coat season is the lavish use of the most astonishing linings, such patterns being selected as display the most bizarre eclecticism—birds and florette effects, squares and patches and all manner of queer things that are not unlike poster designs. Since the outer garment is so conservative in effect, it is only reasonable that the designer should go happily crazy over the interior decorations.

Pussy willow and all the new figured silks are most in favor. A few solid colors are used, but more often the selection is some dizzying stripe or even check—very noisy, but always with a color note that is harmonious with the outer fabric, which may be of wool velours, broadcloth, velour de nord or plush. Following the present interest in gold tones, the best patterns embrace old gold and green, old gold and empire blue or old gold and black—the color of the garment, of course, determining the selection of the lining.

Slippers for the Little Ones.

There is a paper pattern for a most attractive pair of child's slippers. They look like cat's heads, and are made of some soft, woolly material. They are in the shape of heelless mules, and the part that slips over the toes has the face on it, with little upstanding ears to make it more realistic.

High Effects.

Tulle is very popular for trimming purposes. This is, no doubt, because of the high effects desired. The tulle can be looped and wired quite successfully to give any height one may desire.

ERMINE COAT

Fashion has decreed that the pointed collar should again be one of the style features in women's coats. This ermine fur coat with deep-pointed collar shows one of the season's latest models. The collar is trimmed with ermine tails. The coat is loose-fitting, with one of the empire effect belts, which will be worn extensively this winter.

VOGUE NOW FOR FEATHERS

Hat Ornaments of All Shades and Designs Are Shown in Really Amazing Display.

One has only to glance at the counters and counters of feather hat ornaments to be assured that these trimmings are to have an unprecedented vogue. Never were feathers contrived into such novel and intriguing effects; these conventional feather wings are present but nobody notices them in the amazing display of buttons, buckles, hands, cockades, rosettes and what-not all made of tiny, brightly-hued plumage and ready to sew on velvet hats. One round feather button in shades of orange, scarlet and gold will add incalculable style to a simple velvet sailor, and though one must pay a tidy price for a really chic feather ornament, hat and trimming will not amount to such a large sum that the average woman cannot afford to be very chic and modern. For a wee bit of feather and garnishment goes a long way and a button, buckle or cockade of plumage will sufficiently trim a very wide-brimmed hat.

All-feather turbans are among the exclusives in millinery. They come in black and white combinations, in speckled pheasant feathers and in crepe feathers with iridescent hues. The tulle-colored and burgundy-colored feather turbans are especially smart.

While there is little trimming used on the smart hats of the period, the decorative touch is always imparted in a distinctive manner. Vivid parti-colored feathered cockades are favored, and also large plaques made from composition of various kinds and set in rims of old gold filigree. Then there is a wide choice of head fancies.

NOVEL LITTLE KEY HOLDER

Easily Fashioned From Round Hand-Embroidery Frame and a Little Brightly Colored Brocade.

This is easily and quickly made from a round hand-embroidery frame. A piece of brightly colored brocade is cut a little larger than the frame and is stretched on by the usual method. The edges may be cut off neatly and a few brass or gilt hooks sewn on, one at the top for hanging the holder up, the others for the keys. The wooden frame may be left its natural color or may be enameled white or gilded, according to taste.

White Kids Washable.

Much to milady's gratification, smart white kid boots, which are so fashionable today, are washable, just as the gloves she may scrub with pure white soap and warm water. Before going to bed she puts shoe trees in her boots and bathes them, and in the morning, presto, behold, they are spotless and fresh as new.

Head Flower Hair Ornaments.

Instead of a Spanish comb, three dahlias of shaded red and pink crystal beads were worn below her left ear by a beautiful Parisian at a charity ball in Biarritz recently.

SALEM

Elm Grove school entertainment Friday evening was greatly enjoyed by the large crowd attending. Miss Magale is the popular teacher.

Eld. Terry Martin, of Hampton, ably filled the pulpit at Emanuel Saturday and Sunday.

Guy Habb returned home from Titusville, Fla., last week in time to get a "taste" of Kentucky winter.

Robt. Loyd was a victim of a painful accident Sunday while leading his horse by the fore-top, was jerked against a post and thrown down, cutting a long gash in his head which struck the carotid artery. He was unconscious when found.

Mrs. Susan Glenn, of Marion, is visiting John R. Harris and family this week.

Mrs. Hattie Moxley returned to her home Sunday after nursing the sick in Ray Barrett's family several days.

A recruiting army officer created some excitement here last week as some did not understand the nature of his business.

The examination for R. R. carrier for Hampton held here Saturday by Walter Norman. There were nine applicants.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to express our heartfelt thanks and sincere appreciation to the many kind friends who so kindly ministered to the wants of our dear son and brother during his last illness and death. May God's richest blessings a way-blessing be our prayer. M. R. Deboe and family.

G. H. Thomas went to Marion Saturday to visit his sick father-in-law, Mr. P. B. Deboe. Mrs. Thomas returned from her father's bedside Saturday evening. Mr. Deboe's condition is unimproved. — Providence Enterprise.

Never Satisfied.

The captain of the ship Hardtack was on one occasion greatly exasperated by the complaints of the men in the fore-cabin of the quality of the meat supplied to them. "Sure, and I won't deny that it stinks," he said, as one of the malcontents brought a particularly offensive morsel for his inspection. "But you boys are always grumbling and bawling, if you got baked angel for dinner you'd growl about the stuff."

The Disappearing Family Circle

Whoever has a family circle would better enjoy it to the full tonight. A family circle has become one of the rare luxuries of life, and those who are fortunate to possess one ought to appreciate their good fortune.

What was, a generation ago, an accepted blessing, is being destroyed by many of today's influences.

There are few family circles in Europe which war has not robbed of fathers or sons. Invasion and conquest have caused the death of all children under seven years of age in many a district in Europe.

What would your family circle be tonight, O fortunate American parents, if the voices of all your little ones were stilled forever and forever?

Riches cannot buy a family circle. It is always an achievement, the most perfect achievement of a man and a woman working toward one end, the right kind of a home.

But since the beginning of this century, Americans who have not had the excuse of living under war conditions, have grown careless of this fine product of domesticity. In summer the auto splits it to pieces; in winter the movies, dancing clubs, bridge and the rink work just as effectively. And not even an imitation family circle will flourish in a "family hot-l."

Nobody seems to miss it much while it is in a state of undoing, but when it is gone, there is no sweeter memory in human experience than that of the father, mother and all the children gathered around a real good fire in a sure enough grate.

There is no way of mending the broken links of a family circle, but a little attention, now and again, will often prevent it from falling asunder. — Tampa Times.
